People Keep What They Use

The best promotional products don't feel like marketing. They feel like a good mug, a warm jacket, and a bag that holds everything. Here's what people are keeping in 2026.

USEFUL PROMO PRODUCTS BEAT EVERYTHING ELSE

When people are asked why they hold onto a promotional product, the answer is almost always the same: it's useful to have.

78%

of people keep promotional items because they're useful, compared to 43% for enjoyable and 42% for attractive.

WHAT GETS CARRIED, GETS SEEN

Apparel and bags travel. They leave the office, ride along on errands, and show up wherever your customer goes.

Fleece and jackets generate 9,000 impressions over their lifetime, with bags at 4,900.*

PROMO OUTRANKS EVERY AD YOU COULD BUY

When consumers rate advertising formats, promotional products come out on top — ahead of TV, internet, mobile, and social. It's the only channel people are glad to receive.

75%

of consumers hold a positive opinion of promotional products, higher than any other advertising format measured.

TREND 4

ONE IMPRESSION COSTS A FRACTION OF A CENT

A single promotional product keeps working for months, sometimes years, after you hand it over. Spread across its lifetime, the cost of each impression lands somewhere under a penny.

The average promotional product delivers 3,300 impressions at six-tenths of a cent each.*
